To whom may concern,

I have worked with Mr. Jon Hughes, General Contractor, for several decades.
This involved 25 or 30 different architectural projects.

Mr. Hughes skills and qualities contribute greatly to the successful completion of many homes and other projects.

His demeanor and character is an asset when working with clients. He imparts a sense of trust and confidence to the owners for their future homes.

His experience with all types of construction methods, materials and styles is very extensive.

When I am working on projects, even other than projects he would be building, I still seek his advice and input when I encounter unique condition, material or details This occasionally includes new materials, methods or construction techniques.
He keeps informed and up to date with current applications.

I am available for any additional comments on Mr. Hughes professional attributes.

My website contains several of the projects that Mr. Hughes built.

Sincerely,
Jonathan Stout AIA
